Techno Q in Gulf expansion

Qatar-based company Techno Q has announced the opening of its new office in Saudi Arabia, as part of plans to broaden its reach in the GCC region. Another branch in Oman will be the second new office in the region for this year.

Techno Q has pursued initiatives to expand its business operations in the GCC region, focusing on expanding the reach of its audio-visual system solutions division. It has already been sub-contracted for a project in Oman for a government sector client in the second quarter of this year, demonstrating that the company's expansion plan is firmly on track.

Abdulla al-Ansari, Techno Q executive director, said: "Our current strategy is to build up a solid presence in the strong markets around our country's borders. Saudi Arabia has a great deal of potential for us with a massive amount of new projects already underway. Our strength is that we have a well established position and solid track record in the local market, with 17 years of industry experience."

"The new Oman project illustrates the continued success and growth potential of our business," al-Ansari added.

The new office locations will see Techno Q engineers and technical staff co-locate with Techno Q head office staff to offer clients customised full service system integration solutions.
